SATURDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1899.

If Aguinaldo has any sympathy for stale joke artists, he will lose some more clothes.

Whatever American shortcomings Hawaii may have been no one can say that the newsboys of the city are not schooled in the first principles of Thanksgiving Day, as it appeals to the young American citizen.

The profound profundity with which the authority of Hawaii's future governor is being discussed should be preserved in book form to assist in the compilation of a high school graduation essay.

In its comparisons between the native Hawaiians and the negroes of the South, the Advertiser is digressing from an apparent tendency to broader Americanism and creating plenty of material that will come in handy for use against its branch of the annexation party, when the local elections do take place. The newcomers do not take this view of the native Hawaiians. Why should the Government party lead off?

All that is necessary for the present time is to establish the fact that the people of Hawaii have been steadfast and honest in their belief that the privileges as well as the responsibilities of the American constitution were extended to Hawaii when Hawaiian sovereignty passed out of existence by virtue of the Newlands Resolution. The Bulletin cannot fail to express a sense of gratification that the views expressed in these columns have received an endorsement, the exact tenor of which cannot be questioned. The efforts of Counsellor Gear, at one time made the subject gay buffoonery, now have a different appearance to those who could not or would not see the more magnificent chaos toward which the "transition period" was leading.

VICE-PRESIDENT HOBART.

The death of Vice President Garrett A. Hobart removes from the official life of the nation a man of strong character of marked official integrity. Mr. Hobart first came into political prominence through his efforts in purifying the political atmosphere of New Jersey and always held himself in readiness to do the bidding of the people. As Vice President he was not only a staunch supporter of the President, but an able assistant in securing speedy recognition of the Administration's desires. Official association became a personal friendship. No Vice President of recent years has fulfilled the duties of the office with greater satisfaction to official associates and the people.

THE NEWSBOYS' LETTERS.

The symposium of newsboy letters given in another column is interesting reading and by no means reflects discredit upon our public schools. Considering the age of the boys, the corners of the world from which their antecedents spring and the pigeon English that is the universal language of the street, the Honolulu newsboys will compare favorably with members of their fraternity in the average American city. The letters are given verbatim and while the Chinese express Anglo-Saxon ideas in their own peculiar way, they are more prompt to "make a try at it" than those better versed in the vernacular of the English speaking brotherhood. The method of the Orientals in expressing their thoughts also conveys some idea of what the teacher in our public schools has to wrestle with, and why it is that in the advanced schools, one of the requirements of admission is ability to speak English correctly. The penmanship in each of the letters is particularly good, better than that of the average lawyer's brief.

Honolulu has reason to be proud of its newsboys. The majority of them are bright, hardworking youngsters, as well behaved as the average and capable of adding money to their private treasury, which, if not needed particularly in the household, gives the young man a knowledge of the value of money which will prove a benefit in future years.

THE PRESIDENT AND MR. DAMON.

Now the question arises, Had Minister Damon submitted his resignation to Mr. Dole, would he have accepted it? The chances are that, acting under the impression that the President disapproved of Minister Damon's mission he would have allowed Mr. Damon to resign. On account of the probable course that would have been followed, Mr. Damon showed wisdom in presenting his resignation to headquarters and not stopping to quibble over whether the source of authority is in Honolulu or Washington.

On receiving assurances that Mr. Damon had abandoned the feature of his mission which placed him as practically a government official working for private interests, it is quite natural and highly satisfactory to our people that the President should refuse to allow Mr. Damon to withdraw from Hawaii's official life. Until Congress has acted or refused to act, the President is in a measure forced to retain in office the men through whom the transfer of sovereignty was made. Our people saw the first evidence of this when members of the Legislature and Council of State were authorized to continue in office until such time as the President might see fit to release them. It is again brought forcibly to public attention by a request that the Minister of Finance stay by his post until Congress pulls Hawaii out of chaos.

We say the President is in a measure forced to retain these officials in office, and, knowing McKinley in his public career as a kindly and thoughtful man, we believe he concedes to the Executive, Judiciary and Legislative branches of the Hawaiian government a right to the honor and responsibility of inaugurating the new regime, whatever that may be.

This was the policy outlined by the Commissioners when here, and a change has yet to be noted in their public or private utterances so far as known. The President's action from the outset has been consistent and friendly. If the friendship has been abused, the time for counter-action is not on the eve of an important session of Congress.

ST. CLEMENT'S FAIR.

The St. Clement's fair on the old Gulick premises, King street, is booming. From 10 o'clock this morning until time of going to press, the ladies have been very busy attending to numerous sales of articles designed for Christmas gifts. The fair will continue this afternoon and tonight until 10 o'clock. Native singers will furnish music from 6 to 10 p. m. Refreshments will be served at night. The ladies in charge of affairs are as follows:

Refreshments—Mesdames T. R. Walker, T. May, J. H. Soper and Lawrence.
Fancy Work—Mesdames Osborne, Spalding and Wakefield.
Toys (chiefly made by children of the Children's Guild)—Mrs. North.
Flowers—Mrs. Pierre Jones and the Misses Ward.
Silver Table—Mrs. T. J. King.
Hawaiian Table—Mrs. Emerson, Miss Peabody and Miss Ward.
Candy Table—Mrs. Foster.
In Charge of Music—Miss Myrtle Young.

At each of the booths and tables are young lady helpers who are giving valuable service.

The old Gulick house is very prettily decorated with palms, ferns, vines and flowers.

Portuguese Celebrate.

The ball by the Portuguese in Concordia hall last evening was an immense success. The hall was beautifully decorated and illuminated with Chinese lanterns and other lights. Just before the beginning of the ball, speeches were made by Portuguese Charge d'Affaires Canavarro, J. M. Vivas, J. M. Camara and M. A. Silva.

There will be another ball in the Lusitana hall this evening. A large number of masqueraders will be present.

General Cipriano Castro, the new President of Venezuela, is only thirty-six years old, but he has been in politics for a long time. He was always one of the warmest supporters of the Liberal party, and took part in the war of defense during the revolution which was led by Crespo. That general did all he could to influence Castro to his side, and even offered him a portfolio, but Castro could not be persuaded to take it. President Castro is a highly educated young man and a hard worker, but he is hampered with that explosiveness of character which is the greatest handicap to the Latin race.

Accurate history and interesting stories of the campaign are told in On To Manila.

Dr. Henry J. Schenck, who has just completed his twelfth year as dog constable of Boston, has put to death over 10,000 unlicensed dogs during his term of service. He gets $1 for each dog he kills; but his expenses are large, and the profit does not amount to much.
